What does music mean for you?

For me it means having a feeling and insight on the architecture of existence and where my own place lies within that place of neither beginning nor end.

What is music?

Formless Form, an illustration of the structure of time itself relative particularly to our perception of existence as human beings, both emotionally and intellectually.

What made you a musician?

I grew up with it from an infant. My grandparents both played, my father was in the record business, my mother loved all the musicals of the time. As well Philadelphia my hometown is well known for its abundance of musicians, dancers, entertainers etc.

Did music change your life for the better?

That answer is of necessity joined with the previous one. For despite Philly being an incredibly creative center, it was an extremely violent and traumatic place to grow up corrupt from top to bottom, infested with gangs and drugs, and some of the worst trigger-happy police in the country! Music showed me there was indeed another horizon and instilled within in me the tools to get out. So yes it emphatically changed my life for the better.
